I am a PhD student in ancient history. Hartog offered commentary that was unworthy of a sophomore term paper, wrote in a deliberately confusing style, and barely engaged the relevant scholarship on Herodotus that existed back in the eighties when the Mirror of Herodotus was written. No one should ever read this book ever again.

The mirror of Herodotus: the representation of the other ...

What are the linguistic, rhetorical, and philosophical means by which Herodotus fashions his text into a mirror of the marginal and unknown? In answering these questions, Hartog transforms our understanding of the "father of history." His Herodotus is less the chronicler of a victorious Greece than a brilliant writer in pursuit of otherness.

The Mirror of Herodotus: The Representation of the Other ...

John Herington has developed a helpful metaphor for describing Herodotus's dynamic position in the history of Western art and thought - Herodotus as centaur: The human forepart of the animal ... is the urbane and responsible classical historian; the body indissolubly united to it is something out of the faraway mountains, out of an older, freer and wilder realm where our conventions have no force.

Herodotus - Wikipedia

Francois Hartog's Mirror of Herodotus is the most ambitious and influential study of Herodotus' literary techniques to appear since Immerwahr's Form and Thought in Herodotus. It has been out in its French version for almost a decade. An English version has now appeared in the University of California Press

BOOK REVIEWS - JSTOR

Herodotus (ca. 484 B.C.-ca. 425 B.C.) was the first Greek writer who succeeded in writing a large-scale historical narrative that has survived the passage of time. In the lifetime of Herodotus the writing of history, and indeed of prose of any sort, was still something of a novelty. The earliest writings in prose had been the work of a group of Greek ...
